That Iowa Thunder!

Presenting them with free tickets to Heaven, upon which they could travel without the necessity of repentance, would not have astonished the Buchanan leaders in Chicago half as much — though such a gift, we presume, would be wholly unexpected — as the thunder clap from Iowa, which came rolling, booming and crashing through the air. They were not prepared for the sound, and they shake in their boots now that they hear it. They thought they had rendered sufficient assistance to the Ruffians there to make the result a victory for them. They had patched and plastered the Kansas iniquity up with all the ingenuity they could muster; had tied the people into supposed acquiescence with the Cincinnati Platform — pretending all the while that it didn't mean that Slavery is national and Freedom sectional; had rung all the changes in which their clapperstrikers are instructed, upon Know-Nothingism; had dug up and dissected the Maine Law, wired its old bones together, and set the thing to gibboring, to frighten the Germans; had cried out "Disunion" at the top of their voices, until they were all hoarse; and more than all, had wasted rivers of whiskey; but the people listened, laughed, drinked, and then voted, and lo! the result!

We claim never thousand clear majority for the Fremont and Dayton ticket now, and not a thousand for FREMONT and DAYTON themselves in November.

The moral consequences of this victory cannot be over estimated. It is the first response of the people to the atrocities of which the Pro-Slavery party are guilty. It is their verdict upon that suit which has long been pending in the Court of Last Appeals, between Freedom and Slavery Propagandism. Hear how clear and emphatic the decision!

Roll on the ball! The Union, the Constitution, Fremont and Fremont, are the watchwords!

Getting Tired of It.

We learn from Western Missouri that the business men of the border towns—Westport and, Kansas City, in particular—are getting thoroughly tired of the frontier living out of the numerous raids of the Missourians upon Kansas. Their sales do not reach half their usual amount; debts for large stocks are pressing upon them, which they have not the means to discharge; collections are bad; and ruin stares them in the face. So, sensibly, the merchants in Kansas City—not the merchants only, but the larger part of the mechanics—have resolved to attempt to arrest the atrocious outrages which are impoverishing them, and of having their perpetrators to punishment. With this view, they have formed a Free Trade Association, numbering one hundred or more members, the object of which is to protect emigrants who choose to land at their levee, and to defend those who come to the town to buy or sell, regardless of the politics or place of residence. They have also resolved that Border Ruffians, filled with bad whiskey and loud oaths, swaggering around, each with a bowie knife and revolver, ready for a row whenever he has an advantage, or for stealing a horse when opportunity offers, or for cutting a throat whenever necessity compels — are not the men to make a country prosperous, or its merchants rich. They have discovered that the quiet Northern man, with his higher civilization, his demand for more comforts in his home, and more decency of apparel, for machinery on his farm and in his workshop, and books in his house, is the true and best patron of industry and commerce; and they are also reaching after his trade. The discovery is made late in the day, but it is valuable, and we trust the Free Trade Association will act upon its suggestions.

Culpability of the City Authorities.

We published, yesterday morning, the Report of the City Sexton, from which our readers learned with astonishment that, during the month of July, one hundred and fifty-seven children, less than two years of age, have been added to the list of the dead — an average of more than five a day; a period remarkable in this latitude for its evenness of temperature and general salubrity. But the city authorities whose duty it is by the faithful execution of the trusts reposed in their hands, to preserve the public health, are still inactive. The decomposition of the heaps of compost and garbage with which the alleys are loaded pass on, as of shovels and scavengers were not yet invented. The open gutters, half-filled with the drainage of all manner of foul places, give out their deadly poisons as if science had not pointed out the way in which the pernicious effects may be neutralized. And the slaughter of the innocents is kept up. It is in brief time for Coroners' takers and dealers in mourning goods; but there is unutterable woe in many a mother's heart.

In the name of decency, what is this Irish government good for, if not to remove nuisances and clean out cesspools and other places? It was known, when it went into power, that its financiering would be a failure; that its administration of justice would be a mockery; and that its care for the public weal would end in cure for itself; but the cleaning of the streets and the opening of sewers are jobs that it might perform if it would. Its members are expending the zeal which they ought to manifest for the city's good, in the vain effort to buy, in groceries and beer-houses, a renewal of the lease of power with which they have been intrusted, and are now abusing. Let those who have been made to suffer by their outrageous neglect, see to it, that they are fitly paid. In the meantime, make way for the hearses; here are five more children, the dead of the day, brought to be buried! Poisoned by pestilential air. Room, there, let the coffin pass!

Fremont in Pennsylvania.

Our information concerning Fremont's prospects in Pennsylvania, both from public and private sources, is of the most encouraging character; and we assure our friends in Illinois that he is to-day by far the strongest candidate in that State. If the enthusiasm in his behalf continues to rise as the combat deepens, he will get the vote of the State by one of those good old-fashioned Jacksonian majorities which will make every freeman's heart sing for joy. Pennsylvanians are phlegmatic and slow to move; but more has been heaped upon them than they can bear; and now released from the thrall of party, they go into the contest with the determination and vigor which will command success.

☞ A paper giving an account of Trenton, says, "It is a large town, containing 66,000 inhabitants both entirely of brick!"

Equalled only by this well known description of Albany, which runs thus: "Albany is a city of eight thousand houses and twenty-five thousand inhabitants each one of their pubic ends to the street!"

☞ The Rum Meeting proposed to be held at Magnolia on Sept. 6th, has been postponed in consequence of the Mass Meeting to be held at Galesburgh on the same day. Due notice will be given of the time when it will be held.

The South in St. Louis.

It need not be disguised that the election of FRANCIS P. BLAIR, JR., to a seat in Congress, from St. Louis, is a triumph which marks an era in the history of the country now going on between the propagandists of Slavery, on the one side, and the friends of Freedom on the other. Though he cannot be classed as a Republican, he is no less devoted to Free Kansas and the general restriction of Slavery, than the most zealous worker in the Republican ranks. Nominally for Buchanan, he spits on the platform on which he stands, and despises and loathes the cause of which he is made the prop. His position is anomalous, but his election is sure.

As a member of the Missouri Legislature, Mr. BLAIR was the ablest and most fearless of the opponents of Slavery extension. At that time, the Kansas question was just riding into public view, and long before the alarm was sounded in the North, he discovered the plot by which the Territory was to be seized and converted to the use of Slavery; and denounced it, in the midst of the plotters, with the energy and vehemence that the occasion and the fact demanded. His speeches in that body, in the winter of 1854, are models of parliamentary eloquence; and when we remember the surroundings of the speaker, they become models of honest fearlessness. He told the Buffians and Nullifiers, in their teeth, the enormity of their purposes, and he predicted with astonishing accuracy the events which have since taken place. The opinions and principles then avowed, he has never abandoned; and when he was committed by his indiscreet friends to the Pro-Slavery cause, he kicked loose from the trammels that they imposed, and declared that he would not, even to secure his election, subscribe to the odious doctrines which they advanced. All those things were known to every man who voted for him; and yet he has been triumphant. Who says that the world does not move?

In the House of Representatives, Mr. BLAIR will occupy an independent position. His acknowledged ability and his unquestioned courage will make him feared and respected by the North and South alike.

John H. Done.

Funereal pageants are not to our taste. Could we have our way, the dead should be borne to their home, by loving hands. It seems to us fit, that those only who knew and who cherished them should lay them in the grave; for they alone can moisten it with their tears. Yet it is difficult to restrain that feeling which seeks to pay respect to the dead—to prevent an expression of sorrow and of sympathy for those the honest and true-hearted who have gone before us.

It was with wonderful, then, that the funeral of JOHN H. DONE was so largely attended, nor is it at all strange, that the demonstration over it was so striking. His spirit was beyond the reach of the display. Nor is it to the dead, that we should speak, on such occasions, but to the living. Theirs it is to profit by the bewildered alike by the occasion, and by the example of him who has fallen. Theirs it is, to profit by the messenger sent alike to warn and to cheer.

Mr. DONE's death was sudden. It caused a general shock, yet, in itself, it should not be regretted, if the soul was prepared to depart. The blow is not to the dead but to the living. The mourning is over the departed—not only to say a word to our young men, but to respond to the Maryland papers, who warmly and unitedly eulogise him.

Mr. DONE was a self-made man. He owed little or nothing to family; he had no fortune. But he had two qualities which ensured to him respect and success—integrity, and a thorough business capacity. In every effort of his life he seems to have won the esteem and confidence of men with whom he came in contact. He had talent, energy, intelligence; he was a close observer and a practical man; but whatever he had, and all he had, was moulded by an integrity and a purity which commanded the regard and respect of all who knew him.

Another high quality was stamped all over his character—kindness. He never spoke of or thought of his position; he did not seem to rely on authority. It was the right he looked at; in doing a duty as it should be done; and hence his popularity was general. The men who came in contact with him honored him. All the laborers in his employ felt that he was an honest man, and their friend. And they so felt, because his course towards them was marked by consideration and kindness, and because he never wavered from the straight line of truth and of justice.

Young men, then, may learn from Mr. Done's life what is desirable in life. It is not mere success in a monied point of view. This may be obtained, and yet every living principle be perverted. It is not in gaining position. That, too, may be won and every noble influence and pure motive withered in doing it. It is integrity, character, which makes the man, and for which young men should strive with unceasing energy and perseverance.

The Baltimore Patriot thus notices the death of Mr. DONE:

THE LATE JOHN H. DONE.—The painful accident by which this excellent officer lost his life, is but the very bloom of mature manhood, and at a time when his admirable talents and zeal for him an honorable recognition, render it incumbent upon us, as Marylanders, to publish the following biographical sketch of his life, but eminently useful career, as a sincere tribute from the memory of one whom none knew but to love and honor.

JOHN H. DONE was the grandson of Judge Done, of Somerset county, Maryland. In early life he studied the profession of an engineer, and during the years 1837 and 1838 was employed as an engineer on the line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, but was compelled to abandon the pursuit during the monetary pressure which in those years operated so disastrously upon the progress of internal improvement generally. Rich in intellect, but poor in means, Mr. Done returned to Somerset county, where he opened a school, and in the intervals of his leisure studied law. In due season he was called to the bar, where his extraordinary talents soon secured for him a considerable share of practice, and in the course of time the people of Somerset honored themselves no less than their representative by sending him to the House of Delegates. After serving his constituents faithfully for several terms in the lower House, his high qualities commended him to a seat in the State Senate, and we do his memory but justice when we say, that a more efficient and more energetic Senator or occupied a seat in that chamber.

At the expiration of his Senatorial term he received, during the resignation of William Parker, Esq., an unanimous call to superintend the transportation department of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. The value of his services in conderot that Company, and especially the knowledge he displayed upon all matters appertaining to railroads, rendered him a valuable aid to the Cleveland Convention, before an assembly composed of the leading railroad managers throughout the Northern and Middle States, distinguished him as preeminently qualified to assume the charge of any public work of this particular character. It is not, therefore, a matter of surprise to his friends that he was shortly afterwards called upon to undertake the general superintendency of the Illinois Central Railroad, or that the reforms that he introduced in this Law and more extended sphere, met with the warmest approval from those who had so judiciously imposed upon him the performance of the duties of that important station.

Mr. DONE was, in his original belief, a Presbyterian, and was, for some time, a member of the Rev. Stuart Robinson's church, in this city. Though ordinarily a self-made man, he exhibited in all he undertook a fine, native genius, indomitable energy, an unsurpassed thoroughness in his knowledge of details, and that rare combination of qualities which give strength and proportion to fine executive abilities. Beloved by all who knew him, his death has cast a deep gloom over a wide circle of admiring friends, in Chicago, where they had just taken up their residence, he leaves a wife and four children to lament their sudden and unexpected bereavement.

Late European War.

The loss of the Allies and Russians in the late war are officially announced as having been:

Those of the French army	62,492
Those of the English army	19,314
Those of the Sardinian army	2,332
Those of the Russian army	277,200
Making a total of	361,338

This loss of the Allies, reported above, embraces only those killed, or died of disease or wounds. The crippled, maimed, and other wounded are not stated. The Russian loss embraces all both killed and wounded.

NEW ORLEANS WAR.—The New Orleans Crescent of July 21 says: "There are apprehensions of serious disturbances on the borders of Texas and Louisiana. It is said that certain free negroes, mulattoes, and white men, to the number of forty, with the Sheriff at their head, who had been ordered for some reason to leave the country, have refused to do so, and have fortified themselves some four miles above Madison. They are represented to have 100 guns, beside pistols and bowie-knives, and to bid defiance to their opponents."

☞ The Republicans, at their great meeting in Indianapolis, rolled a big ball, emblazoned with stirring mottoes, through the streets; whereupon they were christened by the Buchaneers as "Fandle-bog" party. If the Republicans do swallow—as their antagonists, what shall we call the Buchaneers—the muddy

POLITICAL ITEMS.

[HISTORICAL AND SELECTED.]

"When this old hat was new, my boys, Buchanan was the man,
But Blood is the Keystone state to lead the Federal clan,
Be aware if Democratic blood still make his veins run high,
He'd cure it by phlebotomy, when this old hat was new!"

Alas! alas! Jemmy is no longer himself! We have his own word for it!

The majorities for Fremont in Western Pennsylvania are summed up by the Philadelphia Times, after a careful survey of top various counties, as rather over than under 70,000. The list of papers in the Sun State which advocate his election has run up to eighty-seven.

The Hon. George Dunn, member of Congress from Indiana, has been nominated by the Fillmore party as a Presidential Elector at large. The Constitution of the United States says:

"No Senator or Representative, or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States, shall be appointed an Elector."

Let the people in that State look to it that the Constitution be not contravened by his election.

Right Mass Meetings are advertised to be held during the three ensuing months in Ohio.

The Bangor Whig says that Aroostook county, formerly the Gibralter of the Democracy, will give a Republican majority this fall, and adds that, in the Eastern part of Maine, the cause is fast rapidly gaining for the past year. In Hancock and Washington, as well as Penobscot, the majorities for Freedom are certain to be overwhelming.

The Daily Democratic is informed by an enthusiastic Pennsylvanian from Kansas, that there are a plenty of the same kidney in that State who will give their candidate a considerable vote. The Missionian adds that there will be a Fremont ticket in all the South-Western States.

LATE BUT WELCOME.—The Monroe Democrat, one of the oldest Democratic papers in the State, this week lauds down the nigger-drivers flag, with the names of Fremont and Dayton as candidates, and up Fremont and Dayton.

This is a demonstrative change; it springs from the political condition of the county, which at this moment, although one of the most radically democratic counties in the State, contains a majority of voters, opposed to the extension of Slavery. Hon. I. P. Christmas will have editorial charge of the columns of the Commercial and Det. Advertiser.

Special Dispatch to the N. Y. Tribune.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2, 1856.

Buchanan's telegraphic letter to the Convention of Hards and Softs at Syracuse, has mortified the Democrats here beyond measure, and some declare outright that it is a hoax. A member of the Cabinet was heard to remark that it would lose Buchanan the Democratic votes of all the North and not gain him a single vote at the South. The egotistic twaddle about such an "important event" (i. e., the prospect of electing Old Buck!) in this "crisis," and the reeking of "Sanitarium," come with a bad grace from the old Pillmonger that hatched the Ostend Manifesto.

OLD DARTMOUTH FOR FREMONT.—Speaking of the exercises of the Commencement at Dartmouth, a writer says:

One or two of the speakers referred to Fremont, and an instant cheer showed the temper of the audience. Gov. Dorr, who addressed an "open letter" to Hecker, in which he presumed to question the course of the latter, and his advice to his German fellow citizens, but having failed, after all, to sign his full name to the account, Heckerer answers in the following characteristic and pungent manner:

In reply to your kind letter in No. 173 of the New York Staats Zeitung, accept the following reply as corresponding with my nature:

1. Your letter has nothing to do with the Black Barons; I shall go with the people.

2. You, sir, may be afraid of the Know Nothings; but by that very fact give them new courage; we western men do not fear them.

3. You, sir, may declare a platform as democratic which pronounces the Kansas outrages and deceitves those of foreign birth with sweet words. I cannot. Perhaps a journey to South Carolina, Alabama, Texas, Fort Leavenworth would benefit you when you would see the condition of non-slave-holding whites, and particularly that of the poor German emigrants; or please go to Kansas, Nebraska fall before you, Nebraska fall behind you and the latest Kansas fall before you heart. From here it is not far to Lawrence.

4. You Sir, may write in the "New York Staats Zeitung," that Fremont is a tool of Seward; you will readily perceive that I cannot reply in a paper which has studied Shake peare's Antony as well and has learned from it. I have carried away (from Baden) the war fund; because too many people know that the only fund which could be taken from me is money and I brought with me from Manheim 1 Shame!

5. You Sir, may go with the gentlemen at each office, "Hang Gallows" to whom the publicans and sinners. I, Sir, can not go with such men, having found all offices, because I desire fully to preserve my independence.

6. You, Sir, may go for Buchanan and Breckenridge. I shall go for Fremont and Dayton, and I am not afraid of Know-Nothings temperance fanatics, Priests, Jesuits, or the combined power of the Boo-hoo's which are only fit to frighten German children.

7. The two letters, one to Mr. Esselen and the other to the Bellville Committe, are mine.— Are you now sir satisfied in regard to your curiosity?

My name is not F. H., but Frederick Hecker.

P. S. As I have too many other useful things to do, which hardly occupy my time, it is totally impossible for me to reply to all the unctuously theological, silly, impudent, open and not open slanders. For example name, in letter No. 6 above is sufficient, for another I have none.

HECKER.

Hold Your Tongue, Sir.

The Albion, of New York, is a paper devoted to English news and interests. It spoke, the other day, of "the Brooks outrage," characterizing his assault as brutal and cowardly.— Thereupon Mr. Brooks's organ came down upon the Albion with a heavy hand in the following style of his leisure-studied law. In due season he was called to the bar, where his extraordinary talents soon secured for him a considerable share of practice, and in the course of time the people of Somerset honored themselves no less than their representative by sending him to the House of Delegates. After serving his constituents faithfully for several terms in the lower House, his high qualities commended him to a seat in the State Senate, and we do his memory but justice when we say, that a more efficient and more energetic Senator or occupied a seat in that chamber.

A Rebel Circular of the Slack Democracy.

[Translated for the Commercial from the Cincinnati Volksblatt.]

Mr. Charles J. Faulkner, President of the National Democratic Executive Committee at Washington, D. C., has addressed a circular to all the sub-committees in the Union, in regard to their action towards the naturalized citizens and the best means to secure their votes for the Democratic Candidates. This circular contains the following questions:

1. What is the number of Germans in your county? Are they born here, or immigrants?

2. Are there any French, Dutch, etc., there? and how many?

3. Are there any German papers printed there? If so send us the weekly edition of each, during the campaign.

4. To what church do most of the adopted citizens of your county belong?

5. What is the political opinion of the majority of them?

6. Have you any Democratic clubs there?

7. How large is the acquisition of the National Democracy been received among the foreign born citizens?

8. On what ground is the opposition to the National Democratic party based, where such exists among them? This, in order that we may send you the documents suitable to the case.

Mr. Faulkner shows by this address that the gentleman does not understand the duties of chief of police; it is a pity only that it has not been kept secret, for its closing sentence will lose Maryland to the holy National Democratic party. Indeed this Washington Central Democratic Committee is very like a tailor-shop, in which there are manufactured political coats of all sizes, forms and colors; national and sectional, religious and liberal, Catholic and Protestant, Pro-Slavery and Anti-Slavery, long and short, small and large, loose and tight. The County Committees have but to send in the political measure and form of the voters, and the Central Executive Committee at once sends the article best suited.

Only by and from it said firm will be settled by Thos. Lord. The business will continue under the name of LORD, SWIFT & PERRIN.

PILES, PILES, PILES.—Piles neglected, often prove fatal; leads to consumption; assumes the parts three times a day with DALLEY'S PAIN EXTRACTOR. It relieves from a few applications. Be sure you get the genuine, filled with Extractor, and gradually discharge it as the syringe is withdrawn. It never fails to cure cases of any age or circumstance, or to fail. Sold by druggists, and at the agent's casino.

Fits are known by the head, lifting, and pain of the same. Bleeding piles are caused, sometimes, by the lifting of the whole bowels, which then press the intestinal canal tightly against the rectum, and cause the pain. Pain arising up the vessels, similar to the blood being kept at the top of your finger when a string is tied tight round it; such is the case with piles. Sometimes these three forms are combined in them; then procure a portable abdominal suppressor, and wear a compress to elect the removal of activity in the parts. Reduce, also rub it well over the loins and abdomen for some time, and the natural belts that support the bowels will be contracted, and strength to the parts will be restored. If properly applied, every case will be cured. It never fails.

W. JENKINS, Esq., of Columbus, Ohio, Secretary of the Ohio Insurance Company, who was taken to New York in extreme debility, with Piles, was cured by one discussion performed by the celebrated Dr. Mott, as the only chance to save his life, accidentally heard of the PAIN EXTRACTOR, states, "I feel as well as ever, and am grateful for the cure. The same sum in ill life business intolerable: he was speedily cured by DALLEY'S PAIN EXTRACTOR."

No Pain Extractor is Genuine unless the box has upon it a Steel Plate Engraved Label with the signatures of C. V. CULBERTSON & CO., Proprietors, and HENRY DALLEY, manufacturer. Price 25 cents per box.
